SAFETY PLANNING FOR LGBTQ+ WOMEN

Safety In and After an Abusive Relationship

Remember that partner violence is not restricted to cis-gender/heterosexual relationships. Research has found that about one third of individuals in LGBTQ+ relationships has experienced intimate partner violence.

Design a Safety Plan

Find out about your options and who can help you (friends, family, shelters, police, counsellors, etc.)

Keep your money, important documents, and keys in a safe, readily accessible place.

If you have to meet your abusive partner, do it in a public place.

Try not to be alone, and report your whereabouts to your family/friends.

Change your routine, try not to go to places your abusive partner can find you.
